With extensive studies into the prevention and treatment of hair loss already under his belt, Sam Cohen arrived in Australia 35 years ago and sought employment in the industry.

"This helped me to continue my studies and research on all types of hair problems and at the same time, it earned me a living," he said.

It has been this practical experience dealing with thousands of men, women and children with every conceivable type of hair loss problem that has enabled Sam to innovate, improve, research and develop various methods of hair replacement and hair treatment.

His driving interest has always been to help men, women and children with genetic baldness from going bald by re-growing their natural hair back.

As certain pharmaceutical products came onto the market that were found to be effective in re-growing hair by blocking the 'balding gene', Sam consulted doctors and pharmacists and started conducting his own practical and theoretical research.

Experimenting with various combinations of prescription and non-prescription solutions, organic and herbal products and natural extracts, the results have been spectacular.

"I have achieved unparalleled results in re-growth of hair to the utmost satisfaction of every person I have treated," he said.

The key to Sam's success is his own experience and dedication to the task, unhindered by a commitment to any one product.

"In the years I worked for other organisations, I was disappointed with the way most people with hair loss were told untruths, treated with ineffective cosmetic products, machines and gadgets to produce a false visual image in order to take their money," Sam said.

With the financial and moral support of one of his satisfied clients, Sam has now launched his own organisation, the Institute of Hair Regrowth and Beauty.

"Now I can help people with genetic baldness who have tried other treatments with no success to re-grow their own natural hair back. I also offer the world's first money back guarantee," he said.

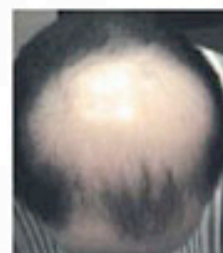

Sam therefore urges everyone with genetic baldness or hair loss problems to experience the Institute of Hair Re-growth and Beauty's guaranteed results program, promising that no one need go bald.
